Victoria Daily Times

THE HOME PAPER — Established 1884

Published every afternoon except Sunday by the Pimes Publishers Limited, 2633 Douglas Street, Victoria, B.C. The Times is a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations; The Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers' Association; the Inter-American Press Association; the International Press Institute, and of The Canadian Press which is exclusively entitled to reprint the local news published herein, and whose reports may not be used without permission. Rights reserved on special dispatches and features. Authorized as Second Class Mail by the Post Office Department, Ottawa, and for payment of postage in cash.

W. ARTHUR IRWIN

BRIAN TOBIN

LESLIE FOX Managing Editor

FRIDAY, JANUARY 8, 1965

The Traffic Toll

BRITISH COLUMBIA ACHIEVED rather missing the point of the great growth in almost every whole matter? area last year including, unfortugrowth predicted for the province, and if nothing is done to halt it, the traffic toll can also be expected to

Despite what Highways Minister Gaglardi claims—that it is liquor and not speed which is the main culprit-it stands to reason that if more cars are put onto the roads and highways and they are encouraged to travel at ever-increasing speeds, there will be more maimings, deaths and property damage.

Mr. George Lindsay, who re-cently retired as superintendent of the motor vehicles branch after 30 years, made this crystal clear in a more and better traffic law enforcement, and co-ordination of traffic safety efforts.

Traffic problems are increasing more rapidly in British Columbia than in any other province with an eight per cent annual growth in vehicle registrations, Mr. Lindsay noted. Accidents and injuries last year increased at an even more rapid rate, 25 per cent over 1963, and road deaths hit a new record of 390. The increase in accidents from 1962 to 1963 was only 6.3 per cent.

One of the by-products of the surge in accidents last year was an average 20 per cent rise in the cost of auto insurance and, ironically, it was over this facet of the situation that most anger has been expressed. There may be good reason for the motorist who has never had

If British Columbians as a area last year including, unfortu-nately, the traffic accident toll drivers, if they weren't encouraged which rose to a new record high. to drive at speeds which many can't For the year ahead there is further handle, and if there was a more unified and stronger form of traffic law enforcement there would have been no need or justification for higher insurance premiums.

Mr. Lindsay, who has always had the statistical evidence right at hand, has been a consistent foe of higher speeds on roads and highways and has just as consistently debunked Mr. Gaglardi's contention that alcohol is the main culprit in accidents. The official figures, he claims, show that drinking is a factor in only a small percentage of accidents and this leaves carelessness and speed as the main factors. For the first half of last year, for instance, alcohol was a factor in statement summing up the need for well under five per cent of the accidents reported and, although it can be argued that this is still too high a percentage and no thinking person will condone impaired driving, it does not bear out the contention the minister of highways.

Mr. Gaglardi deserves credit for the vigorous manner in which he has directed the expansion and improvement of the province's highway system. But it is questionable whether the expansion and improvement of the highways are keeping up with the growing number of motor vehicles which use them, not only the domestic growth but the added burden of an increasing stream of tourist traffic.

Looking back on the black record ish Columbia's traffic accident probby all levels of government in order an accident to be annoyed by rising to head off an even worse toll. Or, insurance premiums, but aren't de- as Mr. Lindsay asked: "Are we just mands for less expensive insurance too prosperous to care?"

Let's Build to a Plan house precinct was originally perts. conceived as an area reserved for proposed city hall. The city hall proposal—for being to other areas of the downbeing to other areas of the downbeing to other areas of the downThe community is growing so

The community is growing so precinct idea may still be retained; rapidly today that there can be no this two-block area could yet become an attractive element in the city's new appreciation of malls and pedestrian amenities. attractive landscaped approach to ment: will it be an improvement or the west doors of the cathedral, and a green belt complementing the valuable retreat offered by Pioneer structures, the district and the city Square. For this reason, and be- as a whole? cause of the importance of the area, it is essential that any new proposal for building there, particularly a

Such a building would be a special purposes in parklike sur- dominant feature of the district. roundings, to constitute a southern It might well prove on examination go on as you are going-unless your confocal point for Blanshard Street and to be a valuable asset, or it might cealed intention is to accept the coming an appropriate environment for the prove to be wrongly situated for the purposes of the precinct and That concept has undergone of the residence itself. But the some alterations in the past four question cannot be decided by offthe-cuff opinions. It should be the Hydro building on Cathedral answered only after a full examina-Hill-has been abandoned in favor tion by qualified town-planning of the Centennial Square program, authorities on the basis of what is best for the precinct and for the IN THE TIMES OF LONDON thought of permitting haphazard development. Each major addition to our city blocks and our skyline should be considered in the light of There still can be created an its effects on the existing environa detriment in that particular location as regards the neighboring

Obviously this is the point at which professional advice must be sought. We must design our civic major project such as the suggested environment, not just let it happen. 140-foot high-rise apartment behind Only in this way will we get the the Royal Theatre, should receive capital city we should have.

Earning Goodwill

THE PUBLIC SUPPORT GIVEN to Goodwill Enterprises since its inception some years ago adds general interest to the start today handicapped workers at Bay and Wilson Streets.

The organization which helps to tion in the new building.
employ those who would find dif
The Rotary Club of Victoria, tive job has earned the respect of the community. Through its efforts many afflicted citizens have found not only a field for constructive or regain their dignity as individuals. In the main, they take prised many, they turn out goods that find a ready market here.

It is gratifying to learn that they will be furnished with up-todate equipment, will have agreeon new, well-equipped quarters for able quarters in which to work and, in addition, will be afforded facilities for rehabilitation and recreaficulty in holding a more competi- which sponsors Goodwill Enterprises, is performing an outstanding humanitarian service for the community as well as for those directly helped. Through Rotary's work, but an opportunity to retain efforts the despondency caused by physical handicaps can frequently be replaced by pride in constructive articles which need reconditioning work. Few forms of therapy are mas in spite of the Labor government."

Away from the Goldfish Bowl

DURING THE CHRISTMAS- including the popular royal family, Prince Charles and Princess Anne "escaped" through a side door to which is quite apart from their avoid newsmen and photographers public duties. assigned to their Liechtenstein ski-

During the same period the first lady of the United States expressed delight, publicly, over birthday presents but declined to go into detail over their nature. The members of the royal family, including Prince Charles and Princess Anne, were photographed during the holidays. So also was British Press Council in condemnthe wife of the American president. ing the trespass by some photogra-Their pictures and their comments make news. But surely people of eminence, ing unjustified intrusion.

New Year holiday season, should be allowed some seclusion for the private enjoyment of living,

> It is generally recognized that the royal family owes a substantial part of its popularity to the fact that it is a family and has family occasions which should be reserved for members only. They are not on perpetual exhibition like fish in a Public and press will have noted with gratification the action of the phers on royalty and will hope that Christmas messages in The Times, surely this has its desired effect in curtail-

Blerman, Victoria Dany Times,

By JOSEPH ALSOP

FROM WASHINGTON

Costs of "Going Back to Waikiki"

UNLESS President Lyndon Johnson takes rather prompt preventive action, 1965 is pretty likely to be rememrising curve of American power and greatness at length turned sharply downward perhaps finally and This would have

President John Kennedy had ducked the missiles in Cuba, Bardue to happen in 1965 if President Johnson ducks the challenge in South Viet Nam, as he seems to be getting ready to do. To be sure, the White House has been of 1964, it seems evident that Brit- passing the word that we can safely go on as we are going in Viet Nam. To be lem needs a major effort this year sure, others have suggested that we can safely forget about the Vietnamese war and negotiate larger diplomatic arrangements which will guarantee a bearable future for Asia.

On Verge of Defeat

But it is ludierous to talk about nego-THE SO-CALLED COURT the careful study of planning ex- of total, final defeat—unless you merely wish the negotiations to register the defeat. And in this same situation it is also self-deceiving to say you can safely defeat and then to try to throw the blame on all sorts of other either way there is not much time left sent no more than a brief transition.

to avert it. Furthermore, the United States has the power to avert this defeat -unless it is argued we are too weak to bered as the year when the proud, ever- win a war against the North Vietnamese aggressors. Hence, it is well now to count what this defeat can be expected to cost.

"The question is whether you want to go right back to Waikiki." In these words, the first part of the cost of defeat in Viet Nam was summarized by one of the leading participants in the White House conhappened in 1962 if ference with Gen. Maxwell Taylor early in December, when the challenge ought to have been met, but was instead ducked challenge of the Soviet for the second or third time during 1964.

ring a miracle, this is Losing Pacific Status "Going back to Waikiki," of course, means losing the American position as a great power in the Pacific. Gaining and holding that position in the Second World War and the Korean War cost us hundreds of thousands of dead and wounded and hundreds of billions of dollars. Its loss after a defeat in Viet Nam is foreseen by all qualified judges, including the President's own policymakers.

The Hong Kong analysts, the best in Asia, say that Formosa will hardly last six months after the United States concedes victory to the Communists in Southeast Asia. It will take longer than that for the Philippines to reach the stage of Indonesia and longer still for all that we fought for in South Korea to go down the drain. Japan's movement to a neutralist position and the consequent loss of Okinawa may even require a good many years.

But as nothing fails like failure, especially in Asia, the whole grim chain reaction is easily predictable. In South-The truth, if it is faced, is meanwhile east Asia, meanwhile, United States defeat quite simple. The United States is very in Viet Nam may perhaps briefly install near to defeat in Viet Nam. It may come an allegedly neutralist government in militarily, or it may come politically; but Saigon. But such a government will repre-

In very short order the Laotian and South Vietnamese peoples, who have relied upon the United States, will be subjected to the bleak tyranny now prevailing in Communist North Viet Nam-because the United States has proven unreliable. But that will be no more than the first phase; for the American defeat will be far more a Chinese triumph than a North Vietnamese triumph.

All of Southeast Asia, emphatically including Viet Nam, will be China's to deal with as the Chinese Communist leaders may please, just as soon as we are defeated and our forces withdraw. In Southeast Asia, China will gain the margin of resources to achieve what China cannot possibly achieve today-the status of a nilitary-industrial giant power. And this third giant power will be led, remember, by the bloody-minded men who now rule Peking.

As for Europe, there are good reasons for believing that the intelligence reports from Saigon are the real source of Gen. de Gaulle's vastly more aggressive recent policy. U.S. humiliation in the Pacific will certainly not increase U.S. influence in the Atlantic, as De Gaulle well knows. And to this dreadful bill that will have to be paid if we accept defeat, one must add the inevitable feedback into Latin America and the Middle East.

Decisive Test

It may seem ridiculous that so much should depend upon the obscure conflict in Viet Nam. But this conflict, for good or evil, has now become a decisive test who is allegedly also a Socialist. of U.S. power and resoluteness. That is the basic reason why Mr. Johnson's choice in Viet Nam in 1965 so closely resembles Mr. Kennedy's choice in Cuba in 1962. One must pray he does not fail where his Copyright (c) 1964 The Washington Post Co.

By MARTIN DEWEY

The Stories the Personal Columns Tell

THE Duke and Duchess of Bedford didn't send any greeting cards at Christmas time. Nor did Baron and Baroness Stackelberg, Sir John and Lady Hutchison, Lady Wilson or Air Vice-Marshal and Mrs. Gerard Combe. They and dozens lustrious and not so ilhave chucked the Christmas card habit.

upon dozens of the illustrious appear to Instead of fretting over the annual list and fiddling with tuppence-ha'-penny stamps, they have taken to inserting a brief Christmas greeting in the personal columns of London's poshest paper, The Times.

Dewey

ton-Bloatney, Bulgey House, are no longer friends a happy Christmas and a prosperous New Year. Some advertisers, perhaps fearing their ing to save on postage, add that they are friends would think they were merely trymaking a donation to this or that charity. Others excuse themselves by mentioning airily that they will be spending Christmas at Cannes or in southern Italy.

In one pre-Christmas item, Sir Adrian and Lady Chamier-after pointing out that they would spend the holidays in Spaincouldn't resist a barbed footnote: "They wish all their friends a very happy Christ-

Class Totem

All in all, it appears that the Christmas message in The Times is fast becoming a class totem. There's something downright ducal in the presumption that an insertion in Britain's "newspaper for top people" will reach all your friends. It must be worth several points, at least, in the deadly serious game of social oneupmanship.

However, the game's top marks this year must go to the authors of the following insertion: "Mr. and Mrs. Frank Muir will not be making an announcement in The Times this year. Instead they will be sending their friends Christmas cards"although we imagine The Times' advertising department still asked $2.77 a line for this non-message.

Yet even if the enterprising Muirs threaten to start the pendulum on its back- object; "Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Mullion would swing-My dear, you're still not putting it's hard to believe the people at The Times will lose any sleep.

For the popularity of their personal rooms,; would prefer to bring own sercolumns knows no season. Among other things, they serve as a year-round house magazine for the toney set, an uppercrust trading mart and a noticeboard for cranks of all descriptions.

Like The Times' letter columns, the personal columns and other small ads have become a British institution - so much so, in fact, that The Times continues to defy every rule of journalism by devoting its entire front page to them.

Yet perhaps there is method in this apparent madness. Often, as it turns out, The Times' best reading is still to be found on the front page. For sheer poignancy, the news columns would have to go a long way to match the following: "Mother, impecunious, requires for Christmas a skeleton for medical student son. Good home."

A typical three-line insertion might go
Or another item in the personal like this: "Mr. and Mrs. R. H. J. Pithing- column: "No joke. Shaving rash, sore skin, etc. Can anyone suggest method of sending greeting cards but wish all their lathering or shaving which does not scrape sensitive skin but which removes tough

Romance, Mystery

For the romantic, there are titillating items such as this one: "Shelly-You can come home. Version 7 is working correctly. Tom." Sometimes there is mys-"For the owner of the BMW Isetta 300 licence number VLE 619 in London or Essex, the best of good wishes from Gallus Hafner, Zurich, Switzerland.

Occasionally, the personal columns offer an entree into the glittering world of titles and country houses: "Young female: executive secretary required at once . . . must be able to mix socially with top people including royalty." Or "Lord Gifford's party still has vacancies for you Or Princess Ruspoli invites you to join her party at the New Year's Eve Carnival Ball at . . .

Alternatively, for the reader who might want a title of his own: "Lordship of manor. Ancient documents and right to use the title 'Lord of the Manor'; 13th century origin: will only be sold to British resident with good references."

Animal-lovers communicate with one another in a special, sugary language: "I am a black Peke-who are you? If countrified, energetic, loving, offer 40 guineas ($126) for six-month-old, male, mischiev-

Then there are the frequent reminders that, Labor government or no, there are still many Britons for whom money is no be glad to hear of a furnished house to rent in the vicinity of Ascot racecourse for the month of June, 1965; must have minimum of five bedrooms and two bathvants but some daily help an advantage." In the same issue, a Park Lane flat is offered at the equivalent of $650 a month and a smallish Augustus John pencil drawing has been opened for bids start-

Refreshingly, there are no lovelorn notices. But there are endless appeals for deep sea fisherfolk and societies for "gentlewomen in reduced circumstances" to leagues for vegetarians and foundations for the conversion of the Jews.

Where Does It End?

ing at $2,400.

In Britain, every disease known to man has a society working to cure it, and all of them-the societies, that is-find their way into the personal columns of The Times. We know that charity begins at home. But where, one might ask, does it was the anonymous donor of £5 9s 3d which arrived in time to pay the instal-ment on the blackboards."" The author of that letter is Mr. N. S.

All of which seems to provide some chuckled, wondered and weft their way traditions. through the front-page small ads, news of bombs going off in China and earthquakes in Peru must seem bland fare indeed.

Mulenga, P.O. Box 280, Chingolo, Zambia. Methinks, maybe, some of our milliondollar educationalists could dig up some chalk for friend Mulgena. W. D. JOHNSON.

Letters

The intended addition of two more councillors will be of definite advantage to the

There will be more opportunity for interested ratepayers from every level of our community to directly participate in responsible local government; and further serve as a training ground and stepping stone for aspirants seeking entry into

In my opinion, men and women who commence their political rise within the grass roots of local government generally make the best legislators in a democratic society, and on such premise municipal councils, such as Saanich, should be en-

A letter to the Editor of the London

My committee feels that our thanks

Daily Mirror under date November 18, should be conveyed to the person who took the trouble to write to you about our "each one teach one" scheme-and to you for printing it. Through this we have received considerable support with letters pouring in from the United Kingdom-we thank them all and we hope to be able to answer in due time. The scheme began three months ago to teach illiterate women who have never had the opportunities their husbands had and are in need of at least a basic education. We have been able to provide the money to purchase material for the making of 38 blackboards for as many open-air schools. At these we run four shifts of classes of 40 women per class each day. There is a total of some 6,000 pupils and 162 teachers. Our course in English conversation begins in January.

I would particularly thank your reader who

Each One Teach One'

DENIS H. BESLEY.

Good Training

Municipality of Saanich.

provincial and federal politics.

couraged to thrive.

4360 Gordon Head Road.

1964, reads as follows:

1008 Falkland Road.

Inspiring Example

Last Sunday a memorial service for the late Miss Muriel C. Harman, Victoria missionary in the Congo, was held at the Church of Our Lord and widely attended. This gracious response by Miss Harman's many devoted friends, in recognition of her lifework in the modern mission field, is an inspiring example of the very real unity which exists among all Christian people-a unity of spirit. Drawing closer together in one faith, one love and understanding, shared by all, was Muriel Harman's deepest desire and constant aim.

To all who attended this memorial service, and to those who so kindly and ably assisted, the Church of Our Lord offers grateful, heartfelt thanks.

DENYS A. G. RANKILOR, DD., Bishop Primus: Canada, The Reformed Episcopal Church.

No Socialist

As a Jenkins who is a Socialist I would like to take issue with your review of the book about Asquith by a Roy Jenkins who is presently minister of aviation in the current British Labor Government and

He is no more Socialist than the man ne wrote about. Another notable Briton once claimed correctly, that in order to conserve one must reform. In the old days when there was some discernable difference between left, centre and right, a Liberal was really a far-sighted Conservative and a Laborite was merely a Liberal (far-sighted Conservative) in a hurry. Roy Jenkins admits that Lloyd George's "13 pounds per year for a rigidly circumscribed half a million of the aged poor was hardly the beginning of the social millenium," but then how could it be? Maintaining worn out proletarians in work houses was costly, to the tune of 13 shillings, six pence weekly.

The Labor party, advocating a bigger dole, superseded the Liberals as the major crusade for reform (not revolution) and preservation of the master-servant relationship in England.

Although he may mean well, Roy Jendonations from everything from missions kins' jottings are an insult to the several Jenkins who support the Socialist Party of Canada's program of common ownership and democratic control of the means of production and distribution by and in the interests of society as a whole.

J. G. JENKINS. 959 Darwin Avenue.

Fort Steele

The news in the press recently that "most of the land needed" for restoration of historic Fort Steele, near Cranbrook, B.C., "had been acquired" is most welcome to all those interested in the hisclues about the fabled unflappability of tory of the province, and who firmly bereaders of The Times: After they have lieve in preserving some, at least, of our

C. HOLMES,

Past President, B.C. Historical Society.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"GEE WHIZ JOEY! THE NAME OF THIS GAME IS "CATCH!"

From Our Files Jan. 8, 1905-Nagasaki: About 1,000

wounded Russian prisoners of war from Port Arthur arrived at Daire Hospital today. Jan. 8. 1925 -Montreal: While Eugenie Prieux was walking along Des Encores Street with his wife yesterday, three men jumped out of an automobile and while threatening them with revolvers, forced Mrs. Prieux to remove her clothes, with which they made off. Jan. 8, 1945-An Indian, Ernest Jack. asleep on the railroad track was struck and killed instantly at 4 a.m. by a southbound E and N freight train.